Chaplains' Aid Society Host at K. of C. Hall in Camp Greenleaf.

Last evening at Camp Forrest, in E. of C. hall No. 2, an entertainment, arranged under the auspices of the Chaplains' Aid society of Chattanoowas given for the men in the serv ice who are stationed there and the spacious hall, which had been decorated for the occasion, was crowded. Fated for the occasion, was crowded.
Following a pregram composed entirely of artists who were known in civil life as very capable entertainers, refreshments were served by about thirty ladies of the Ald society, and that the men were appreciative was demonstrated by the enthusiasm with which they received each number of the performance.

Chief among the presentations was the blackface skit of Sergt, Gallagher, of evacuation hospital No. 26, assisted by Mr. Quinn. Sergt, Gallagher, pre-the blackface skit of Sergt. Gallagher, of evacuation hospital No. 26, assisted by Mr. Quinn. Sergt. Gallagher, previous to his enlistment toured the country in repertoire and also supported William Gillette in one of the latter's most successful productions.

It has been arranged by the war activities committee of the Knights of Columbus at Camp Forrest to conduct entertainments twice weekly at their buildings, as it has been found that shows of this nature have the effect of keeping up the spirits of the men, forming a diversion from the routine of the dull evenings in their barracks.

Following is the program as rendered:

String instruments, "Venetian Trou-String instruments, Venetian Trou-badours"—Evacuation hospital No. 26. Comedy Offerings—Private Finkel-stein, base hospital No. 22. Minstrelsy—Sergt, Gallagher, evacu-ation hospital No. 26. Vocal Selections—Sergt, Day. Sergt, Weil, of base hospital No. 22. accompanied the different artists on

HAS PLAY "INTOLERANCE" AN ULTERIOR MEANING?

Certain Earmarks of Liquor Interests Apparent in Unfolding Plot.

Griffith's "Intolerance" has come and gone, having "played" a three days' stand in form of movies at the Alstand in form of movies at the Alcazar. With its exodus it has left a variety of impressions concerning its merits and demerits. As a spectacular production it is doubtful whether its prototype exists, on the boards or within one's fondest imagination. The conquest of Babylon by the Persian Cyrus, even though violating all historic records, sacred and secular, was thrillingly depicted. The walls of Babylon, the towers of Cyrus, Greek fire, battling rams were shown with a startling degree of realism, so historically correct that one wonders why the author transgressed the exact record which lets the Persian conqueror enter by the "river gates" and warns ter by the "river gates" and warns the Chaldean Belshazzar of the ap-proach of the enemy through the He-brew prophet, Daniel, rather than by a mountain girl. The point he makes of "Intolerance" here is equally startling. No historian, apart from the author of the movie production, thinks of considering the conquest of Babylon by Cyrus as an act of intolerance. Rather has it been considered as an act of Providence. With all its mather act of Providence. With all its math-ematics, cuniform writing, culture and science, Babylon was steeped in intquity and its ruler "weighed in the

However, the Griffith production takes this phase of "Intolerance" as his starting point. The trial and crucifixion of Jesus and massacre of St. Bartholomew's day are next cited. But they are misleading antitynes, since they are misleading antitypes, since, apparently, they are really to the point, while the story of Cyrus and the latter-day romance are confusing. Human interest naturally centers about the romance. On the surface it rings true. Underneath it bears sus-piciously the earmarks of the liquor interests, in that the particular brand of latter-day intolerance centers in the efforts of would-be "uplifters" of a community, to interfere with the drinking habits of the masses. This in summary, is the play "Intolerance" in its human application.

CLOTHING NEEDED AT CRITTENTON HOME

Girls Accused of Firing Building Prove Satisfactory Alibi. League of Mercy Meets.

Since the destruction of one of the buildings of the Florence Crittenton home a number of the girls of the home are seriously in need of clothing, and the institution is in need of bedding. The fire of Sunday, which destroyed the fine laundry equipment presented to the home by the Junior league has seriously handicapped the work of caring for the inmates.

At a meeting of the Florence Crittenton League of Mercy, held Tuesday at the First Baptist church, announcement was made that the two girls accused of firing the building had been cused of firing the building had been able to prove a satisfactory allbi. Both were known to have been over in the nursery during the entire morning pre-ceding the outburst of fire, which it is now settled, beyond all peradventure resulted from a defective flue. This Sergt. Wheatly, it was stated, sustains. Mrs. Joseph Brown, president, was in charge of the meeting during the dis-cussion of the fire, and said she was confident there was not a girl on the place who would set the house on fire. So far there have been two or three remunerative lines of work established in the interest of the home and these are enlisting much pride and personal care on the part of all receiving shel-
